

This paper discusses a rare case of aortic arch anomaly with subclavian steal syndrome. The images of our diagnostic findings are presented and compared with findings in healthy individuals.