

The review article is dedicated to the issue of the implementation of neural network in the risk stratification for mortality after myocardial infarction. The advantages of neural network over widely used prognostic scales are discussed. The examples of the development of such models are presented.